1. Scope and standard arrangement

UK employees in suitable roles may work remotely up to three days per week and normally attend the assigned office at least two days per week, agreed with their manager. Client-facing, secure operations and new-starter roles may require more office attendance

This is a fictional working arrangement, not a substitute for any statutory flexible-working request process. People Operations assesses formal requests and reasonable adjustments separately.

2. Approval and location

Agree working days, contact hours, office location and cover in PeopleHub before starting hybrid work. Core collaboration hours are 10:00-16:00 UK time with agreed breaks; normal contractual hours remain unchanged. Remote work is permitted only from an approved private location in the UK

Working overseas is not automatically permitted: obtain written People Operations, Compliance, Tax and IT Security approval before travel or accessing systems. There is no guaranteed overseas-days allowance. Approval specifies country, dates and restrictions.

3. Security and client contact

Use managed company equipment, multi-factor authentication and the approved remote access service. Keep screens private, lock devices when unattended and use an approved headset for client calls

Customer conversations must use approved recorded channels where required for the role; personal messaging and unapproved transcription tools are prohibited. Do not print client files at home or upload internal documents to personal AI accounts. AQ-CMP-002 sections 2-4 govern classification, access and approved AI use.

4. Workstation and costs

Complete a workstation assessment before regular remote work and annually thereafter, with reassessment after material changes. Report discomfort or accessibility needs promptly. The one-off GBP 250 equipment allowance in AQ-HR-002 section 4 covers approved items with receipts; Finance follows AQ-HR-003 approval rules

Company-issued laptops remain company property. Broadband and household utility costs are normally the employee responsibility. Do not purchase software or security equipment independently.

5. Availability and disruption

Publish working location and maintain calendar availability. Remote work is not a substitute for dependant care or sick leave; discuss flexibility or leave under AQ-HR-001

Report lost equipment or suspected compromise to IT Security immediately, with an internal target of 30 minutes after discovery. During a home internet outage, contact the manager within one hour and agree office attendance, alternative secure work or time arrangements. Do not use public shared computers to restore access.

6. Review and exceptions

Managers review the arrangement after eight weeks and then every six months, considering service quality, wellbeing and security. Temporary changes require a recorded reason and review date

Withdrawal of an arrangement requires People Operations review, reasonable discussion and consideration of adjustments or formal rights. Example: three UK remote days do not authorise a fourth day from France; the overseas approval process applies even for one day. Version 2.0 clarifies overseas access and approved AI restrictions.
